From Lagos to the world.

Born in Nigeria, Jemiriye learned traditional Yoruba songs from her grandmother in the village. A Nigerian Idol finalist, she rose on stage before pausing her career in 2005 to care for her mother in hospital for two years — the experience that forged her writing.

Her music fuses Yoruba folk, Afropop and soul. She uses her voice to advocate for African women's empowerment, children's education and the fight against forced marriage.

Notable awards: LifeTime Achievement Award (President Joe Biden), Global Ambassador of Peace (African Peace Magazine), Afropop Queen, International Cultural Ambassador.

In 2014, first African to sing the anthem at Citizens Bank Park in Philadelphia (Jackie Robinson Day). In June 2023, she performed for President Bola Tinubu at the Nigerian Embassy in France.
